THE South-Carolina GAZETTE.

March 30, 1752. [NUMB. 931.]

Mr. TIMOTHY,

AS Geometry is a Sciene of universal Use and Benefit to Mankind; to shew whence it had its Rise will not, I presume, be an unacceptable Entertainment to your Readers. To enumerate its progress would be needless; that has been done by many eminent Authors. And tho' what I am now to offer to the Public, is, perhaps, known but to very few, yet I confess myself indebted, on this Occasion, to the ingenious remarks of a Gentleman no less famous for his Skill in Antient, than modern, Masonry.

This great Author (John Langley) who is a real ornament to his Country, takes Notice that Geometry had its rise from one of the most sublime Instances of Divine Architecture, the Mechanism of the human Body; which is so curiously framed, as to fit all the various Purposes of Life. Such as are destin'd for Labour, are found robust and strong; those for Activity and Address, of a more slender and genteel Body; and the Man for Business, a mean between those extremes. This observation of the Antients he says gave rise to the Doric, Ionic, and Corinthian Orders in Architecture. But to come to the Point, the Discovery by the Antients was in this Manner: They made choice of a Man, that to the Eye appeared in just Proportion and Symmetry. This Man they laid on his Back; then extending his Arms in a streight Line, and placing his Legs in a Line exactly perpendicular thereto, and drawing parallel right Lines, to touch the Extremities of his Head, Fingers, and Feet; they found that their Angles of Intersection generated a Geometrical Square, whose diagonal Lines intersected each other exactly on his Secreta. Again, extending his Body, so as the opposite Legs and Arms respectively forming right Lines, and intersecting each other on the Navel of his Body; they found that the Alternate and opposite Angles were respectively equal one to another: Hence they found how to measure the Compass of the Earth. Again, making the Navel of his Body the Center; and the Distance from the Navel to the Extremity of the longest Finger, Radius; they described a Circle, and found it to touch the other Extremities of his Body: and all Lines drawn from any Point of the Circumference, thro' the Navel to the other, to be equal one to another. And thus the Circle and Geometrical Square and properties of streight lines, were first discovered, from a well-proportion'd human Body. And from them all the various Properties and Affections, that now form that most noble Science of Geometry, have arisen. To improve the most noble Art, to adore the Grand Architect of the Universe, is one of the Arcanums of Free-Masonry. In recommending which to all the Sons of Liberty, I conclude

Sir, Your most humble Servant,

ARCHEOLOGUS.

P.S. Having mention'd the great Author of Nature, in the Conclusion of the above Paper, I beg Leave to add a few Words concerning the fix'd Stars, a Part of his stupendous Fabrick. Astronomers have, many Ages since, observed their motion round the Poles of the Ecliptic, producing the Procession of the Equinoxes, and a Change of Declination in the Stars. But besides this they have another Change of Declination, first discovered by Mr. Bradley. He has found, that in observing any Star for a whole Year together, it is seen to describe in the Heavens a small Ellipsis, whose greater Axis is about 40 Seconds. This aberration of the fix'd Stars seemed, at first, subject to so great Variations, that it was not 'till after a long Course of Observation that Mr. Bradley discovered the Theory upon which this Motion, or rather this Appearance, depends. And if no less than the Accuracy of that Gentleman could have discovered this Phenomenon, no less than his penetration could have assign'd his Cause. I shall not undertake to explain his System, which may be seen to much better Purpose in Philos. Trans. No. 406. I shall only add, that this change of Place in the fix'd Stars seen from the Earth, proceeds from two Motions combined, that of the Rays of Light that come from the Star, and that of the Earth in its Orbit. If the Earth were fix'd, in order to look at a Star through a Telescope, the Telescope must have a certain inclination, that a Ray of Light from the Star, passing along its Axis, may reach the Eye. But if the Earth, carrying the Telescope along with it, moves with a Velocity that has any sensible proportion to the Velocity of Light, its inclination must now be alter'd; else a Ray of Light coming along its Axis cannot enter the Eye: And the Different positions of the Telescope will depend on the several Directions in which the Earth moves at different Times of the Year. A Calculation founded on these Data, the Velocity (and Direction) of the Earth in its Orbit, and the Velocity of the Rays of Light, which is known from other Experiments, will produce a Difference of the fix'd Stars, agreeing with Mr. Bradley's Observations. This Gentleman has likewise discovered that the fix'd Stars have still another Motion, incomparably slower than these two mention'd, and which is not sensible but at the End of several Years. This, probably, may be the Subject of another Paper; and if any thing curious or entertaining occurs, you may assure your self I shall communicate the same.

Madrid, Oct. 26. There has lately been published an order, or decree, by virtue whereof his Catholick majesty prohibits, under very severe penalties, all manner of correspondence with the inhabitants of Hamburgh, and absolutely forbids the importation of all merchandizes from Hamburgh, of what nature or kind soever.

Naples, Oct. 15. Besides the advantages which the king has promised by the late edict to tradesmen and artificers who shall settle at Messina, of an Exemption from all public taxes for ten years; his majesty also allows them to partake of all extraordinary free gifts for the said term; and promises moreover, that neither his subjects, or strangers, who shall establish themselves in that city with their wives and families, shall be obliged to do any public duty, or serve in any public capacity whatsoever, for the said term of ten years.

Naples, Oct. 19 His majesty, in order to follow the example of the Republic at Genoa, being very solicitous of rendering the trade and commerce of Messina as flourishing as possible, has determined to make ours a free port, but under some particular limitations and restrictions.

Genoa, Oct. 23. The important advantages attending the establishment of a free port, are already felt in this city, by the arrival of divers foreign merchants, who propose to settle here; and amongst others, several very rich and substantial jews, who have abandoned Leghorn for that purpose.

Madrid, Nov. 2. We are assured an edict of the same kind with that lately publish'd against the Hamburghers, will, in a few days, be issued against the Danes, on account of the treaties subsisting between them and the emperor of Morocco.

Hague, Nov. 16. The marriage of the Marquis del Puerto, ambassador here from Spain, and his son, minister from the same crown to the court of Denmark, with two daughters of the Baron de Reischach has given occasion to the following enigmatical conundrum: My mother is daughter of my mother: My mother is sister of my brother: My wife is daughter of her sister: I am the son of her brother, and she is great aunt of my children. All this is true without any body being guilty of incest.

Hague, Nov 23 Mr. Klefeker, resident from the city of Hamburgh, has been lately raised to the dignity of syndic of that city; and, at the same time he receiv'd the news of his promotion, there came an order for him to repair immediately to Madrid, to solicit the repeal of the late prohibition, made against Hamburghers trading to any of the ports of Spain, which is attributed to the ill Offices rendered, to the citizens of Hamburgh by some rivals in trade.

A Neapolitan chymist of great reputation has lately published a little piece, in which he maintains that nitre, sulphur, vitriol, and allum have but one principle in nature, and that by a proper management of fire and water, any earth, out of which one of these is taken, may be made to produce them all; and it is farther said, that he has shewn a great many experiments in support of this doctrine.

London, Nov. 12. It is currently reported, that in the approaching preaching fellows of parliament, several considerable alterations will be made not only in the laws relating to the poor, but also in other branches of our civil polity, which may render them less burthensome to the subject, and yet more useful on the whole, for which the public are, in a great measure, indebted to Mr. Justice Fielding, and to the author of free and candid disquisitions on the laws.

ADVERTISEMENTS.

MATHEWES and LLOYD's Store having been broke open last Saturday night, and divers dry goods stolen thereout, a reward of FIFTY POUNDS is hereby offered to any person or persons, who will discover the thief or thieves, or any of their accomplices, by MATHEWES & LLOYD.

AS there is an absolute necessity, for cutting and cleansing the creek commonly called Ashley River: We the subscribers being by law appointed commissioners thereof, give this timely notice, that we are ready to contract with any person willing to undertake the same, if they give in their proposals between the date hereof, and the first day of May ensuing: After that time if no person offers to undertake the same, they will be obliged to summon the several inhabitants by law directed to do the work.

AS I intend soon for England, this is to desire all persons that have any demands upon me, to send in their accompts, and those indebted are desired to discharge the same without farther notice; the house I now live in to be let or sold, is compleatly finished and very convenient for a small family: I have likewise to sell, two very sober honest wenches and four children, the one a cook and washer woman with three children, the youngest between 3 and 4 years old, the other a handy house wench with one child. Any person inclined to purchase the said house or negroes, may have what credit they desire, giving such security as shall be approved, and paying interest from the day of sale. I have also houshold goods to sell reasonable for ready money.

SARAH REDMAN.

WHEREAS several Persons for some time past, have made a practice of sending and selling dry goods and wares about Charles-Town, and places adjacent, hawking and pedling, without any licence for the same, contrary to an act of the general assembly of this province, in that case made and provided, which practice is now become very prejudical: And in order to put a stop thereto, this is to acquaint them, and all others whom it may concern, that we the subscribers are resolved and fully determined, to put the said act of assembly in force, against all such persons as shall be found so doing, after the first day of April 1752. Witness our hands this twenty-fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifty two.
